

Reserving study space on campus

Two Problem Statements:

1. IIT students are able to reserve/cancel 1 hour study sessions in multiple different buildings within an allotted space in order to help with minimizing risks related to COVID-19 by limiting the number of students who have access to those spaces in an orderly fashion. This will help students feel safer and more secure while on campus, allowing them to better focus on their coursework instead of focusing on the pandemic.
2. IIT students are able to reserve/cancel study sessions in a multitude of different environments within the buildings at IIT. What this essentially means is that each building will offer a different type of study space, such as a quiet, library-esque environment or a louder, collaborative experience where students can assist each other and express themselves. This will allow for students with different learning processes to find a space where they can study in a manner that best befits them, which will improve grades and student morale.
